

Ethics in Law Enforcement Online Training Program

Our E-Learning Programs are FREE to all CIRMA members.

Course Description:

Part of the screening process that every law enforcement entity puts its applicants through involves matters of character. All departments want to be certain that they are hiring men and women of high moral fiber. Officers are expected to be the “good guys”, since their job is to catch the “bad guys.” Why is it then, that occasionally the line between the good guys and bad guys become blurred? What happens to the men and women who come into the profession with such high ideals, only to compromise those ideals later?

In this course the learner will gain understanding of the importance of a strong ethical foundation, reinforce how to make good decisions based on this same ethical foundation, and finally see how some situations put an officer in a compromising situation and how to avoid those situations.
