Community Policing Online Training Program

Our E-Learning Programs are FREE to all CIRMA members.

Course Description:

When the term "community policing" is mentioned, citizens will often think only in the narrowest of terms about the issues they know personally, like the D.A.R.E. officer who works at their child's school or the new bike patrol working the streets of downtown. The reality is this limited perception of community policing only scratches the surface of what "community policing" actually is.

In fact, community policing amounts to a total change in the way law enforcement does its job, moving from a "call and respond" approach to law enforcement to a problem solving style that relies heavily on the cooperation and commitment of community members. Using the COPPS model of community policing in conjunction with an investigative process known by the acronym S.A.R.A., officers will learn to become effective problem solvers in the communities they serve.
